DID YOU KNOW?

2022 Utility Payments Due March 31

Utility notices were issued at the end of February and cover the costs for utilities that residents use in their homes every day, such as water service, sewer service, garbage and green waste collection.

New this year, sewer fees are included in the utility notice instead of being included in property tax notices. To help residents with this transition, the City has deferred the first utility bill late payment fee to July 4, to align with the first late fee for property taxes. To support City services, please pay by March 31. For more information, visit coquitlam.ca/utility.

Did you know you can pay your Coquitlam utility bill online? Paying from the comfort of your home allows you to skip the line and pay in minutes. Visit coquitlam.ca/utilitypayment for information on the various payment methods available.

For questions about your utility bill, contact the City's Revenue Services at 604-927-3050 or email utility_info@coquitlam.ca.
